DAYTON PUBLIC CITY SCHOOLS, DAYTON, OH

Project start date: November 2007
Project completion date: December 2012
Total project dollars: $627,000,000
Construction type: Construction Manager
Project scope:

Under the Ohio School Facilities Commission's Accelerated Urban School Construction Project, the Dayton Public Schools underwent a massive renovation and rehabilitation of its entire district over a ten year period. In 2007, Shook Touchstone was hired as the Construction Manger of this $627 million dollar project, which was funded by the State of Ohio (61%) and the District (39%). The Construction Project includee the construction or renovation of 28 pre-k-8 neighborhood-schools with 473 students each and 4 new high schools grades 9-12, with 950 students each. In addition, the project included the high school construction/renovation project of Stivers School of the Arts (grades 7-12) with 998 students and the David H. Ponitz Career Technical Ce(grades 9-12) with 1,000 students.

Shook Touchstone managed 8 projects for phase II, which wrapped up by late summer 2008. Phase III consists of 11 additional schools, which will all be completed by December 2012. In all, the total square footage for all of the new/renovated facilities is 953,375. The majority of all of the facilities have or are currently targeting LEED Silver certification.
